

BRADLEY GLAZIER

Bio

After enjoying success in debate and competitive speaking competitions at Chelsea High School, Brad Glazier decided he wanted to become a trial lawyer. He was awarded a college scholarship based on his success and was part of a team that won the National Forensics Association's National Championship Tournament each year he attended college. In law school, Mr. Glazier excelled in moot court, which involves presenting oral arguments to a panel of judges. After graduating from law school, he began a career that has focused on helping people who have been fired their jobs.

A practicing lawyer for more than 30 years, Brad Glazier has presented dozens of cases to judges, juries, and arbitrators. He is a frequent speaker at employment litigation seminars. He has made presentations for the Council on Education in Management, the Michigan Association for Justice and the Institute for Continuing Legal Education (ICLE), to name a few.

In addition to representing clients as a trial lawyer, Glazier is also retained to resolve or help resolve disputes. He serves as a case evaluator in disputes before the Kent County Circuit Court and was appointed as a referee by the Michigan Department of Civil Rights. Glazier serves as a mediator who assists in negotiating case settlements. He is listed on the court-approved civil mediators' roster for the Kent County Circuit Court and the United States District Court for the Western District of Michigan. Glazier has also served as an arbitrator and was selected to be part of the national roster of neutral arbitrators maintained by the American Arbitration Association.

Brad Glazier has argued appeals of cases before the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit and the Michigan Court of Appeals. He has also been admitted to practice in the United States Supreme Court and the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. Glazier has also taught aspiring lawyers law office management at Western Michigan University's Cooley Law School as an Adjunct Professor.